About This Recovery Home

Rogers Sober House is sober living for women in Lowell, Massachusetts: a small, 14-bed home on Rogers Street in a quiet part of the city. The second floor holds nine shared beds and the house's one single room, and five more shared beds are on the first floor. Parking spaces on the property go first come, first served. Public transportation and local services are close by, and the home has air conditioning, laundry on site, a full kitchen and common living areas. Recovery Housing Initiative runs Rogers as part of the Vanderburgh Sober Living network. Women meet as a house every Monday at 6pm, curfew is 11pm every night, and a House Mentor who lives in the home is there for support; drug screens are random. Lowell's bus lines and nearby highways make getting to a job or a meeting workable without a car. Across town, Great Living Sober House is a men's house from a different chartered operator, and it is preparing to open.

Home Leadership & Certification

Recovery Housing Initiative is a structured recovery housing operator in Massachusetts, providing safe, supportive sober living homes for individuals in early recovery from substance use disorders. Rogers Sober House operates to the standards of The Vanderburgh Foundation.

Rogers Sober House — Lowell, MA

Vanderburgh SOBER LIVING

Life in the House

Rogers is a small house for fourteen women in a quiet part of Lowell. The size suits women who want a calm home and a household where everyone knows each other. The women share the house, look out for one another and keep it a substance-free place to live, with air conditioning, parking and laundry on site, and a House Mentor who lives in the home.

Every Monday at 6 PM the house meets, and that meeting is where problems come up and get sorted. Curfew is 11 PM every night. Drug and alcohol screening is random, and the House Mentor is there for support and coaching through the first weeks.

What the Structure Looks Like

- Monday house meetings at 6 PM, every week
- A quiet part of Lowell, near public transportation
- Random drug and alcohol screening, for every woman in the house
- An 11 PM curfew, seven nights a week
- A House Mentor living at Rogers, for support and coaching
