About This Recovery Home

Zero Tolerance: County Sober House is sober living for men in New Bedford, Massachusetts, on County Street in downtown New Bedford with public transportation nearby. It has 24 beds (three private, 21 shared), and shared rooms hold three or four beds each. Bedding, towels and hygiene products are supplied. The house has air conditioning, storage, laundry, premium cable and a shared computer station that guests use for job searches, plus parking in the driveway and on the street. Two house managers and a recovery coach work on site for Zero Tolerance, the chartered operator, and a morning ride takes men without their own transportation to a nearby resource center, running until 1pm. House meetings are held on alternating Wednesdays at 6pm. Within 30 days each man lines up a sponsor, recovery coach or mentor; overnights open at one after 30 days and two after 60. In Taunton, Zero Tolerance also runs Union Sober House for men and Zero Tolerance Sober House for women.

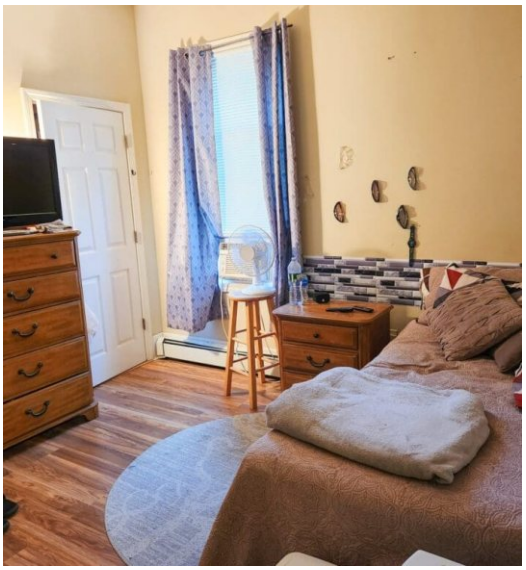
Zero Tolerance: County Sober House — New Bedford, MA

Vanderburgh SOBER LIVING

Life in the House

County is a house for twenty-four men in New Bedford, run by Bee Flores of Zero Tolerance. Bee is a recovery coach who has rebuilt his own life, and he is most passionate about helping men coming home from incarceration do the same. With that many guests, the house has a real peer group: men at every stage who know what the first weeks feel like and can say so.

House meetings are every other Wednesday at 6 PM, and curfew is 10 PM or 11 PM depending on the night. The men share the house with a live-in House Mentor, and drug tests come at random. Bedding, towels and hygiene products are provided on arrival.



What the Structure Looks Like

- Twenty-four men, from first week to final month
- Curfew of 10 PM or 11 PM, depending on the night
- Bedding and hygiene products, ready when you arrive
- House meetings every other Wednesday, at 6 PM
- A computer station, for job searches
- A House Mentor who lives at County, plus random testing

About Zero Tolerance

The Zero Tolerance: County Men's Sober House in New Bedford, MA is a structured sober living home serving men in recovery from addiction. The home was established 2 years ago under the leadership of Bee Flores who is a passionate advocate for the recovery community. Bee supports his guests by leading with attention and care. He is actively involved in his community, working as a Recovery Coach and leader of the Broken Chains Biker Church.

Bee is most passionate about helping ex-convicts re-integrate into society and turn their lives around just as he was able to do. With the grace of God, Bee was able to break the cycle and make something for himself.

As a chartered home, Zero Tolerance: County Sober House operates to the standards of The Vanderburgh Foundation and carries the support of the wider VSL network.
